London, UK, 2015 – Next up on sinmusik* label is Georgi Barrel, who serves up a pair of hot new deep house tracks and gets remixed by a fine selection names including Adrian, Fasika and Whedler. German producer Barrel has already served up a couple of great Eps on this label but this might be his best yet.

Listen: <http://soundcloud.com/sinmusik-1/sets/sm023>

In original form, 'Down' is lush and elastic tune with organic drums, warm chords and spaced out pads all making for an inviting and charming atmosphere. A cool vocal and fat, rasping baseline drive things along before his other original 'Forms of Freedom' gets much more slick, punchy and high tempo. Its still a classy, deep space affair with lots of spiral pads, but there is real sliding energy in the drums and vibes a plenty in the male vocal sample that adds another layer of depth.

As for the remixes, first is Faskia, who flips the track into a spritely, nimble footed and pumping house cut with inviting chords at its heart. Then Adrian toughens out the original with bulbous bass, a new vocal and oodles of deep house charm. Lastly, Whedler remixes into totally different territory - his withering, bubbly, multi-focussed track is uplifting and frictionless and rounds out a solid package.

This is an essential EP for any and all working house DJs who need something fresh for their bag.
